

Tähe-Lee Liiv, age 15, began her piano studies at Tallinn High School for Music with Maigi Pakri. From 2013 she studied at the same school with Marrit Gerretz-Traksmann. Since fall of 2018 she has continued her studies in Finland at the Sibelius Academy, under the tutelage of Hui-Ying Tawaststjerna. In 2017 and 2018 she attended Konstantin Bogino's summer festival master classes in Bergamo.

Tähe-Lee has been successful in many competitions. In 2011 she received third prize in the Estonian National Competition for Young Pianists "Ferenc Liszt 200" in Tallinn. In 2012 she won first prize in the Estonian National Competition for Young Pianists in Tartu. In 2014 she was awarded second prize in the competition between students of the Tallinn Music High School "Con Fantasia," and in the competition "Estonian Sound" she received second prize in 2014 and third prize in 2015. In the international competition "Young Musician 2017" she won third prize and a special prize for interpretation of a piece by Estonian composer Tõnu Kõrvits. In 2018, she was a finalist in the International Frederic Chopin Piano Competition in Narva, won first prize in the International Piano Competition in San Dona di Piave in Italy, and received first prize and a special prize for interpretation of Mart Saar's music in the Mart Saar Competition for Pianists in Estonia (where she was also the youngest participant). She also won second prize in the international competition for pianists in July 2018 in Chioggia, Italy, and second prize in the "Virtuosi per musica" competition in Usti Nad Labem, Czech Republic. In 2019 she received first prize in the national competition for young pianists of top music schools in Estonia, and she was a finalist and was awarded a special prize for virtuosity at the First Nordic Piano Competition for Young Pianists, in Sweden.

Tähe-Lee has performed as soloist with Tallinn Chamber Orchestra (an arrangement of Tchaikovsky's "Album for Children"), with Pärnu Town Orchestra (Mozart Piano Concerto No. 8), and with the orchestra of the competition "Young Musician 2017" (Haydn Concerto in D Major). She performed with Chioggia Chamber Orchestra in 2017 (Beethoven Piano Concerto No. 1) and in 2018 (Chopin Piano Concerto No. 2). She also performed Chopin's Concerto No. 2 with Alion Baltic Festival Orchestra, Sergei Stadler conducting, and with Virumaa Chamber Orchestra, Toivo Peäske conducting.

Miss Liiv has participated in master classes with Arbo Valdmaa, Hande Dalkilic, Natalia Sucharevich, Irina Zahharenkova, Vladimir Ovchinnikov, Dmitri Bashkirov, Vladimir Ogarkov, Jura Margulis, Carlos Juris, Michael Bulycher-Okser, Mati Mikalai, Age Juurikas, and Ivan Lija.